Fall Term Opens for Extension

Opening classes for the fall term of the University of California Extension are in session with some 97 courses and special programs offered in the southwest district.

North High School, 3620 W. 182nd St., is the meeting place for most of the courses, with some 50 classes scheduled to meet there. Other locations include San Pedro, Inglewood, El Segundo, Manhattan Beach, Lennox, Hawthorne, Redondo Beach, Palos Verdes, Rolling Hills, Long Beach, and Compton.

Five special programs, covering the fields of music, liberal arts, political science, education, and business administration, are being held during the fall term.

"COMPETING Ideologies in the Modern World," a lecture series or credit course, is open to the public. First session in the series was held at North High Thursday. The series will explore the development of democratic, totalitarian, and authoritarian governments and philosophies.

Other special events include a non-technical introduction to jazz, a class which will meet for the first time tonight at North High. Part of the course will be attendance at two major jazz concerts.

"SMALL Business Management," an eight-week lecture series, and "The Third 'R' for Teachers," a televised course on modern math aimed especially at teachers, is scheduled. The Extension also offers "Child and Youth Study Program," a course which emphasizes concepts and techniques concerned with learning and human behavior.

University Extension brochures designed for area residents are available from the Extension office at North High. Interested persons may telephone the office at DAvis 3-4773.

WHITE CANE DAYS . . . Lions Lou Assink, Ernest Harris, and Dr. Robert Barrett discuss final plans for the "White Cane Days" drive, to be held Friday and Saturday in Torrance. Proceeds from the drive are used for the Lions Club sight conservation and aid to the blind programs.

White Cane Days Begin

Some sixty members of the Torrance Lions Club and their families will be inviting local residents to share in the White Cane Days drive Friday and Saturday, according to Ernest E. Harris, Lions Club president.

Dr. Robert Barrett and Louis Assink are White Cane Days chairmen for the local club.

Local Lions will ask residents to wear the miniature white cane during the two-day drive as a symbol of recognition for the work which the Lions do throughout the year. More than 600 other clubs in the California and Nevada district will participate in the nationwide appeal.

During recent years, the Torrance Lions Club has spent nearly $12,000 in such projects as eye examinations, braille writers for blind children, and scholarships for teachers of the blind.
